

SELECT JURY TO TRY WILLIAMSON IN SPRINGFIELD

CHARGES ARE DISCUSSED BY RIVAL LAWYERS

First Witness Will Give Testimony This Morning

By Robert P. Howard
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Springfield, Ill., June 12.—(P)—With the jury selected and the charges discussed by the rival attorneys, the conspiracy trial of Hiram L. Williamson, former state superintendent of printing, today reached the evidence stage.

The first witness will testify tomorrow morning as two assistant attorneys general seek to prove that Williamson and his secretary, Nellie A. Machin, conspired to defraud the state by peddling the payroll of former Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom.

Both sides are expected to use Carlstrom as a witness.

For the state, Assistant Attorney General J. J. Neiger told the jury evidence would be submitted to show that Williamson got his friends placed on Carlstrom's payroll without having to do any work for the state.

Undercover Men

Williamson's attorney, A. M. Fitzgerald, said the warrants were cashed by a devious route because it was necessary for Carlstrom to have undercover men whose identities were kept secret.

Selection of the jury was unexpectedly completed in mid-afternoon. Walker Butler of Chicago, special assistant attorney general, asked for adjournment then but Circuit Judge Victor Hemphill insisted that the opening arguments be completed.

On the jury are five farmers, a dayman, a truck driver, a railroad employee, a mechanic, a greengrocer, a golf course, an employee of the city light department and a carpenter.

The day's biggest sensation came as court was convened, when charges of jury tampering were aired before the judge at a private session.

After an investigation, the judge admonished Ed Wing, an investigator for the Cook county sheriff's office who said he had no connection with the Williamson case.

Fitzgerald charged that Wing was working for the prosecution and had tried to talk with prospective jurors. This was denied by Butler, who said he thought Wing was affiliated with the defense.

At a conference in the judge's chambers, it was understood Wing said he, as a former resident of Springfield, was spending his vacation here.

Fitzgerald and the prosecuting attorneys frequently disagreed during the arguments. Butler objected when Fitzgerald described himself as a Democrat and Williamson as a Republican.

The judge sustained the objection. "You have no objection to my being a Democrat, your honor?" Fitzgerald asked.

Neiger's opening statement was his first active appearance in the case, the selection of the jury having been handled by Butler.

AIRLINER CRASH INVESTIGATION GETS UNDERWAY

Bottles Of Chemicals Discovered In Luggage

By Ben Robertson
Associated Press Writer

Liberty, N. Y., June 12.—(P)—A three fold investigation was underway tonight to determine the cause of the mountainside crash of an American Airlines plane that killed the seven persons aboard. Sullivan county authorities directed a part of their attention to a secret formula for explosives and bottles of chemicals found in the luggage of one passenger.

Preparing for the inquiry tomorrow in the office of the district attorney here, coroner Victor G. Bourke retained a small handbag carried by a Buffalo chemist, William B. Bader, which he said contained the following:

A formula labeled "Navy's specifications of explosive 'D,'" three bottles containing chemicals, and literature and data about high explosives.

Scrutinize Effects
Dr. Bourke said his inquest will scrutinize these effects.

Another phase of the investigation—that occupying the attention of department of commerce inspectors and officials of the air line—concerned the stormy weather prevailing at the time the plane crashed into the pine-clad slope of Montauk mountain, above Livingston Manor, a few miles from here.

Aviation experts at the scene held to the theory that Clyde Holbrook, World War aviator and pilot of the plane, was trapped by adverse winds while trying to skirt the storm area.

Coroner Bourke said T. H. Bennett, an official of the Semetsovsky company of New York, by whom Bader was employed, made "strong representations" for the return of the chemist's possessions but that his request was refused pending the inquiry.

Bennett, however, said he had merely inquired as to the disposition of the contents of the bag and had not sought immediate possession of them. He expressed the fear information contained in the bag would fall into the possession of competitors.

Early this morning, Dr. Bourke said, Bennett called him to say documents in the bag were valuable navy property for which his company was responsible.

The navy formula dealt with ammonium picric acid, a powerful chemical substance.

This, Bennett said, is not used by anyone in the United States except the navy for the manufacture of explosives.

The coroner was interested in bits of a broken bottle found amid the wreckage of the liner.

"There was an internal explosion we believe, but it might have been caused by gasoline."

JOHN DILLINGER REPORTED TO BE IN MINNESOTA

Federal Officials Despatch Men To Scene, But "Tip" Cools Off

Chicago, June 12.—(P)—Another Dillinger scare apparently evaporated tonight.

Late today department of justice agents, sheriffs' deputies and police scurried through portions of Wisconsin and Minnesota, heavily armed, on the information that the much sought John Dillinger was driving a Plymouth car on a solo trip headed toward Red Wing, Minn.

A check of the license number reported on the automobile showed the plates had been issued to Mrs. Carl H. Nordell, Chicago, who added that her husband, an engineer heading his own firm, had driven to Madison, Wis., and may have gone on through Baraboo, Wis., and up toward Red Wing, focal points of the search.

Also, she said, her husband slightly resembled the elusive Indiana desperado. She had not, however, heard from him since arrival at Madison earlier today, she said, and it was possible his automobile had been stolen.

Police here said they believed the search had its genesis in another case of mistaken identity and federal agents questioned Mrs. Nordell. They could not be reached for comment after interrogating her.

The search for Dillinger in Wisconsin started in the Lake Delton, Dells and Baraboo region. Federal agents, sheriffs' deputies of Dane and Sauk counties toured the area. Even the United States marshal, scheduled to take Jean Crompton, "moll" of the slain Tommy Carroll, Dillinger mobster, to prison for parole violation, was called to join the search.

From St. Paul, H. H. Clegg, assistant director of the federal bureau of investigation, rushed several carloads of men, armed with machine guns, into the quest. Later after Clegg talked with Chicago officers he was reported as having said the tip "wasn't so hot."

HORNER TO CHICAGO

Springfield, Ill., June 12.—(P)—Governor Horner left Springfield tonight for Chicago, where he will remain until Monday on which day he will address the national conference of state liquor control officials.

Killed When Airliner Crashes

Darrow Review Board Says Trade Practices Changed By "Mysterious Agency"

By Elton C. Fay
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, June 12.—(P)—The Darrow review board, likened NRA methods to a military equipment today and Hugh S. Johnson retorted that the description was "ridiculous."

The second report of the board renewed assertions that NRA codes fostered monopoly and said some "unrevealed and mysterious agency" changed trade practice pacts somewhere between their approval by the trade and promulgation by the white house.

The report did not mention Johnson by name, but it was flavored with military terms.

Enter Protest
"We desire to enter our protest against the practice of surreptitiously altering codes drawn in the open. It is most unfair, unreasonable, arbitrary and autocratic."

"It clothes the administrator with the perilous power of an economic satrap. It cannot exist without tending to multiply the ascendancy of the large enterprises; it cannot exist without much graver dangers to our economic system."

"There is, moreover, connected inseparably with it a most unpleasant suggestion that favors more of the methods of a military encampment than of legitimate and orderly business."

This statement was made in connection with views on the boot and shoe code, which with the lumber code was subjected to the most vigorous treatment of 13 codes considered in the second finding of the review board.

Some of the sharpest words were in reviewing its study of the retail trade industry.

"The sinister changes made in this code, without warrant, without redress to the body that made the submission to the body that the enterprise, without notice to the enterprise, arbitrarily affected, constitute an arbitrary exercise of power that seems to demand searching inquiry on even graver grounds than those of economic justice," the report said.

The report said there was a change in the trade compact on advertising which "of course thumps all the life and validity out of the original intention and leaves it limp and meaningless."

"As to the authorship of the change that overwhelmed the hopes of hundreds of thousands of conscientious business men, we are left in no doubt," the report said. "On November 4, the administrator of the national recovery act said this:

"I, myself, wrote the word 'inaccurately' into the retail code before the president had signed it. I did it on my own responsibility."

The report said that "for a considerable period after the code had been promulgated in its mutilated shape, thousands of small dealers, unaware of the alterations, clung faithfully to their original faith only at last to be cruelly deceived."

Harking back to Johnson, the report declared:

"In our judgment, the rule of the military commander is totally unsuited to the genius, habits, traditions or psychology of the American people and wholly ineffectual in meeting the present national crises."

Turning to a discussion of an institute in the cement industry, the report said:

NEW FIELD OF MEDICINE HAS BEEN OPENED

New Substance In Blood Has Been Discovered

By Howard W. Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Editor

Cleveland, June 12.—(P)—Discovery of new substance in the blood, which play the role of balancers and which may be new personality chemicals was reported to the American medical profession today.

Some of the physicians who heard the report said it promises to open an entirely new field of medicine. These chemical balancers appear to act as stoppers against the effects of the hormones which the body produces from its endocrine glands.

The endocrine hormones in turn regulate growth, energy, color of complexion, sexual development, bodily contours and numerous characteristics often associated with personality as well as health.

The new developments were reported to the Association for the Study of Internal Secretions, meeting simultaneously with the American Medical Association. Their significance was explained by J. B. Collip, M. D., of Montreal. A number of medical scientists collaborated in the discoveries.

The medical name for these balancers is "antagonistic substances." Their chemical nature is not yet known, except that they differ from the "antibodies" which the body manufactures to protect itself against disease.

One of these "antagonists" has been definitely found in animals, another shows traces, and there is evidence that the same chemicals exist in human blood.

Under Dr. Collip's theory there is an antagonist substance for each hormone. The two maintain a balance. This would radically affect the medical treatments now given by doses of hormones to regulate growth, sex life and many other troubles. For in the past hormones upsets have been blamed upon either too much or too little of the hormone produced by the patient's own body.

Under the new discoveries it appears that in the balance between the hormone and its antagonist the proportions of the two may differ in individuals.

In other words in some cases it may have been the hitherto known antagonist which was at fault, instead of the hormone secretion.

This, Dr. Collip pointed out, would explain abnormal responses of some individuals apparently normal, when hormones were administered to them.

STEEL WORKERS VOTE AGAINST STRIKE, CLAIM

Ninety Per Cent Favor Company Unions Ballots Show

By The Associated Press

Washington—President's advisers reported rushing draft of new labor resolution to give president sweeping power to deal with threatened steel strike situation after white house conference; Wagner bill may be sidetracked this session.

Pittsburgh—Steel corporations claim overwhelming victory in "company union" elections; union "rank and file" leaders discuss three-point "compromise" proposal; Mayor McNair bans picketing within city.

Gary, Ind.—Steel workers and mill owners prepare for strike.

Anti-Strike Sentinels

Pittsburgh, June 12.—(P)—While union clocks hourly ticked nearer and nearer to time for a proposed nationwide steel walkout several of the largest operators in the giant industry tonight announced primary elections among the workers show an overwhelming anti-strike sentiment.

They declared the voting, for the specific purpose of choosing employee representatives to deal with employers, also shows that "about 90 percent of the workers" are in favor of the present "company union" plan as opposed to the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers which has issued the strike call for the middle of the month.

The operators said today's balloting brought the total of workers to participate in such elections during the past two weeks to around 120,000.

M. F. Tighe, president of the Amalgamated, termed the balloting "a farce."

"These elections, sponsored by company dominated unions, naturally would show results favorable to the operators," he said. "We can prove many instances of workers being intimidated."

FREE FROM DEBT
Ashton, Ill., June 12.—(P)—Free from debt, the municipality of Ashton has more money than it needs and citizens today were informed there would be no city tax levied for 1934.

The city council made the decision not to levy any tax. For a number of years the annual appropriation was about $9,000 but recently due to reduction in assessed valuations that amount had been cut and taxes lessened. Due to economies, the city still was able to pile up a surplus which now totals $18,000.

BABY KILLED
Freeport, Ill., June 12.—(P)—Marjorie Connelly, 3, was killed by a truck driven by Chris Johnson today. Witnesses said she darted into its path.

STRONGLY WORDED DEBT NOTE SENT GREAT BRITAIN

Property Where Still Is Found May Be Seized

Chicago, June 12.—(P)—Maybe you've forgotten about stills, but the government, it seems, still remembers.

Because these private distilleries are just as unlawful now as they were during prohibition, the United States began suit today to seize and confiscate properties on which it had found three of them.

It will confiscate, if it wins the suit, a six story building, a three story building, a 1-30-acre farm and everything on it—the hogs, cattle, horses, the cultivators and the binder. The properties all in all are estimated as worth $1,000,000.

Records showed James F. Porter owned the six story building, Sylvan M. Moses the three story one, both of which are in Chicago. The farm, near Sycamore, Ill., is owned by Charles J. Kallman.

REX TUGWELL'S NOMINATION IS BEFORE SENATE

Agriculture Committee Reports Favorably By 16-2 Vote

By Sam Bledsoe
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, June 12.—(P)—The Senate agriculture committee's favorable vote of 16 to 2 today sent the nomination of Rexford G. Tugwell as undersecretary of agriculture to the Senate where the Democratic leader, Robinson of Arkansas, planned to bring it up tomorrow.

After the tumult which attended the questioning of Tugwell yesterday, the agriculture committee voted behind closed doors without a word of discussion.

Only Chairman Smith, (D. S. C.), and Senator Hatfield, (R. W. Va.), opposed approval. One committee member, Thomas, (D. Okla.), did not vote.

Committee members said that while Senator McNary, (R. Ore.), the Republican leader, voted for Tugwell, he reserved the right to oppose—or support—the nominee on the floor.

Democrats Confident
Democratic leaders were confident that Tugwell's nomination would be confirmed by a one-sided vote, although they expected quite a bit of discussion.

Tugwell's emphatic declarations yesterday that he opposed communism and was an enthusiastic supporter of American governmental institutions, however, had changed the plans of some of his foes.

Several Republicans—hoping for Democratic support—had planned to make the issue Tugwell's theories and views and to avoid any general assault upon administration policies.

Some of them said today Tugwell's testimony had changed the situation and they might lambast the "new deal."

The two Democrats who criticized Tugwell yesterday—Baird of North Carolina and Byrd of Virginia—were expected to have something further to say about the president's professional advisor.

Apparently they were unconvinced by the nominee's repeated declarations that he was unqualifiedly opposed to the Russian, or similar systems of government which call for a rigid economic planning.

Smith, who refused until the Senate specifically directed it, to bring up Tugwell's nomination, said his opposition was because the assistant secretary of agriculture hasn't had sufficient experience as a dirt farmer.

Committee members who voted for Tugwell today were: Wheeler of Montana, McGill of Kansas, Bankhead of Alabama, Bulow of South Dakota, Caraway of Arkansas, Bone of Washington, Murphy of Iowa, Pope of Idaho and Hatch of New Mexico.

Democrats, and Norris of Nebraska, McNary, Capper of Kansas, Norbeck of South Dakota, Frazier of North Dakota, and Cutting of New Mexico, Republicans and Shipstead of Minnesota, Farmer of Labor.

Poisonous Black "Widow Spider" Kills 2 Persons

Salt Lake City, June 12.—(P)—The poisonous black widow spider was blamed for two deaths today, one here and another at Winona, Miss.

William Russell, a mill worker of Bauer, Utah, died last week of what then was thought to be blood poisoning from a small blister on his foot.

His physician today had decided the "blister" in reality was the wound caused by the bite of the spider, several of which had been found about the Russell home.

The Mississippi death was that of the 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Jennings of Vaiden. The child was bitten on the eyelid Friday and died in a hospital later.

UNITED STATES IS PREPARED TO RECEIVE OFFERS

Britons Informed That Their Own Credit Involved

Washington, June 12.—(P)—A strongly worded note tonight reminded Great Britain that its own credit standing was involved in debts to this country and suggested that offers would be considered for readjusting the debt or for payment in goods and services.

The note to Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, from Secretary Hall set forth these points in response to the British debt note of June 4. They were:

1. Great Britain would have to pay only the amount of the June 15 installment to avoid being considered in default under the Johnson law.

2. There is no connection whatever between the debt owed the United States by Great Britain and those owed Great Britain by other countries.

3. The United States government will be glad to entertain proposals for either readjustment of the debt or for payment in goods and services.

"The British government undertook to borrow under its own name and on its own credit standing, and repayment was not made contingent upon the sale of the debts due to the British government," the note said.

After explaining this government interpreted the recent note of Great Britain as indicating that government did not intend to make any further payments until the United States had scaled down the debt to a point acceptable to Great Britain, the note said:

"Should his majesty's government wish to put forward proposals for the resumption of payments, this government would be glad to entertain and discuss them informally."

"For instance, no proposal has ever been presented to this government looking towards payments in kind to an extent that might be found mutually practicable and agreeable."

"Any proposals of this or a similar character which promise mutual benefit will be carefully considered for eventual submission to the American congress."

The note concluded with a quotation from President Roosevelt's recent message to congress in which he said that the United States had no desire to overburden her creditors but that it was "in a just position to ask that substantial sacrifices be made to meet these debts."

The notes said the United States was aware of the heavy wartime expenditures undertaken by Great Britain, the burden of taxation that has been borne by the British people, and the transfer difficulties involved—as outlined in the British note—but add that it was "unable to concur."

The only indications before this government of the extent to which his majesty's government has proposed to meet its obligations are the small fractions of the sum due mentioned by his majesty's representative in the course of the discussions in the spring and autumn of last year referred to in your note of June 4.

"Adhering to the opinion so often expressed by the United States government a situation of this kind necessarily calls for the initiation of proposals by the debtor and not by the creditor."

The British note had been written with the idea that the full sum of all its past due indebtedness must be paid to prevent its being considered in default under the recently enacted Johnson law. This would have required payment of $282,000,000.

The new note said the state department had been informed by Attorney General Cummings that those countries that had made loans, or partial payments, on past due dates would not be considered in default if they paid the amount of their June 15 installment. This for Great Britain would amount to $85,870,765.

A resolution introduced in the senate two weeks ago by Senator Tydings (D. Md.) would authorize the president to make a lump sum gold settlement of the debts due from all debtor nations, or accept partial payment in kind in goods and services—as suggested in tonight's American note.

Some observers immediately pointed out that Great Britain controls the world supply of rubber and predominates in tin production, and predicted that an arrangement might be made under which the British could repay part of the debt in those raw materials.

Belgium and Czechoslovakia have also advised the United States in formal notes that they will be unable to make any payments on their next installments.

Finland has announced it will pay its installment of $186,548 in cash. Ten other nations are yet to be heard from.

Claude Adams of Winchester was calling in the city yesterday.

The Scout Cause
Jacksonville and neighboring communities have enjoyed for several years the advantages of Scout area organization. Hundreds of boys have been reached thru this type of work, and the advancement made by Scouts in this area is noteworthy. Scouting has been a success in this community and has done an outstanding job of character building.
The Scout organization is in need of funds to continue the work. For the boys of Jacksonville Scouting means camping, swimming, woodcraft, outdoor life, the opportunity to become skillful in many arts, crafts and even professions, and perhaps thru merit badges activities the chance to discover life work. If this work is stopped now, these boys will suffer an acute loss.
The people of Jacksonville should support the Scout movement. They have firsthand knowledge of its value and know what it can do for boys. It keeps youth occupied at wholesome recreation and tasks, satisfies the gang spirit by troop activity, and inculcates high ideals of character thru its patriotic and religious appeal.
It is a fact that most useful things in a community are sponsored by small groups. There are several citizens who are interested in Scouting and have taken the responsibility for raising the funds thru solicitation. They should not have to sell Scouting to those whom they approach, because this city's experience with it should be well known, inasmuch as it has been highly satisfactory.

"Barnyard Golf"
About four summers ago we attended a family reunion where the male relatives all go to pitching horseshoe. We recalled the home court on a side street where we used to play and could not resist taking a turn at hurling the iron. We discovered that the other peg was a lot farther away than it used to be and by the time our right arm was sufficiently trained to make at least one "ringer," the reunion was ready to break up and we had to go home.
We see by the paper that Quincy is organizing a horseshoe club, and the reading of that article has caused the old fever to return. We would like to put on a pair of overalls and spend a day with the pegs and shoes even if we didn't win a game. There is something about the swing of a horseshoe, unattached to a hoof, that gets into our blood. Just to hear the thing hit the peg, even if it does bounce 25 or 30 feet, gives us a thrill of satisfaction. At least we put it where it belonged. Must have been the way we held the shoe that caused it to land wrongside up.
We'd like to throw 'em in close and then take a stick and measure with our opponent for the points. A "leaner" counts three and is not to be sneezed at. But of course the climax is reached when we throw a "ringer." We have seen champs throw them several in a row. That gets monotonous and it's too professional. We prefer to throw one occasionally just to keep up interest in the game, and that's the way we usually throw 'em, no matter how hard we try.

Walker's Waistline
There were a lot of things about former Mayor Jimmy Walker that some didn't admire. His retirement from public life was met with sighs of relief in a great many quarters.
But there was one thing which many a man envied the debonair Jimmy. That was the trim athletic waistline to which he clung "way past the time when the average man begins to show sign of thickness about the midsection.
All looks fall in time and now Walker's former waist is back from a visit to Walker in England, telling how genial Jimmy is getting larger around the waist. His shirts pinch him at the neck.
Too bad! Oh, Jimmy, they took away your job, your prestige, your wisecracks—must that trim dapper figure also be taken from you? If you ever come home again, New York may not even know you, your last claim to distinction finally taken by the toll of time.

Prompt Political Action
Whatever mandates the country may give congress in next fall's election should take effect with unprecedented promptness. The end sought by the Norris amendment, officially abolishing "lame duck" sessions, is now completed with the signing of a suitable congressional act. The new congress will convene January 3 next year, and regularly on that date from then on. Two years later the presidency will become subject to the same plan, the electoral vote being counted on January 6 and the president taking office on January 20.
Such expediency in expressing the will of the voters though new in our federal government, is common in the state and local governments. Foreign nations under the parliamentary system can change rulers or policies still more promptly, holding elections whenever they feel like it, and installing a new administration sometimes within a week after election.

Some of our congressmen, however, feel that the new American arrangement may involve too much haste. Representative Sumners of Texas, chairman of the house judiciary committee, says: "We are going to have to move up the election of the president about a month. There isn't time now for the settlement of any contest that might arise." It would seem odd to have a presidential election in October. And perhaps it isn't really necessary.

Lo, The Poor Indian!
It is three hundred years and more since the Pilgrims landed in Massachusetts and met the Wampanoags, native Indians of the Martha's Vineyard region.
No better reminder of their complete submergence under the life of white invasion could be had than the news that the Rev. Leroy Perry of Gay Head, Mass., is teaching to the few surviving Wampanoags their own tribal language.
Forgotten by the tribesmen themselves, it has been preserved in white men's collected lore of the Indians, and now a few straggling braves are to learn from a white teacher the language of their fathers.

The Country Doctor Again
Editorial Opinion of the Columbia (C.) Dispatch.
The country doctor is a figure of legend. His nose put out of joint a little by that case of Mrs. Ernest Dionne and her quintuplet daughters up in Canada. By all the rules and precedents, the babies should have ceased to breathe after a few hours or days of life, even if attended by the most skillful physicians and in a hospital where every means known to science would be at hand for use. But the five little girls, prematurely born, underweight up to this hour persist in breaking rules and precedents by living on in spite of the lack of what the specialists would regard as the minimum of both prenatal and postnatal care.
For the Dionnes are in the care of a country doctor. This birth took place not in the maternity ward of a well equipped hospital, but in the rough country farm house. For use in the emergency that this remarkable birth presented to him, Dr. Dalio had only such material and equipment as a country doctor would carry in his hand bag when starting to answer such a call, and such special facilities as an ingenious physician could contrive to make out of the meager house hold equipment to be found in a backwoods home.
A doctor with long experience in such work in a well equipped hospital might not have measured up to this requirement. In such an experience one is not called upon to use his ingenuity to convert household articles into sick room appliances. Sometime specialists and trained nurses need the experience presented in the Dionne home to round out their training. Of course the Dionne babies are not out of danger, but a country doctor has brought them through the first crisis.

Relief Workers at District Gathering
Several Morgan county emergency relief officials went to Springfield Monday and attended a district conference of Illinois Emergency Relief executives and workers at the St. Nicholas hotel. Governor Horner, W. S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the relief organization of the state, and others addressed the gathering.
Governor Horner congratulated the relief workers on the way their task has been handled. The general program of the commission and latest developments in the drought situation were discussed by Mr. Reynolds.
At the conclusion of the general program there were round table discussions for case workers, social workers and special workers to take up their problems.
Those from Jacksonville attending were Mrs. Tillie J. Kelly, director of relief for Morgan county; Clarence Ingram, accounting supervisor; Byron L. Beard, superintendent of work relief; Robert Allan, garden director; Miss Mary Norris, statistician, and members of the case work staff.

The New Deal in Washington
Roosevelt Can Face Music and Take It... Who's Crazy In Washington? ... A Day of Jumbled Memories In the Nation's Capital.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal and Courier Washington Correspondent
Washington, June 12.—They had one of those highbrow musicals at the White House the other night, organized by Mrs. Roosevelt, who likes to entertain and make everybody happy.
Mr. Roosevelt, whose favorite song is "Home on the Range," and who is always up on the current scene, walked into it on the arm of a colored servant.

"You know," he confided to the servant, "I'm not very strong for that sort of thing. But I can take it!"
Who's Crazy? Your Guess
A man walked into the Senate gallery the other day and he was very nearly nude.
The he exact, he wore sandals, a loin cloth and a short white cape over his shoulders. (Ladies described this as "the American Gandhi.")
Anyway, he wore so little that he caused no end of consternation and was promptly hustled out of view by Sergeant-at-Arms Chesley Jurney and half a dozen policemen.
It was at that point that Senator Frederic C. Walcott of Connecticut, a Republican if ever there was one, demanded:
"What do you want to arrest him for? Probably he's the only sane man in Washington."
There is a certain amount of evidence that Walcott was giving voice to an opinion widely held not only in Washington, but also in the country outside. To be brutally frank, however, one must admit that nearly all congressmen, as well as most New Dealers, harbor an idea that the rest of the nation is not crazy, but just plain dumb. (Neither idea is completely true.)

Day's Memory Jumble
Rarest sight in Washington, Miss Frances "Fanny" Robinson, in an NRA corridor without her boss, General Johnson. Reason: She had been out to powder her nose. . . . Willard Thorp, chief of Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce until Chairman Stephens of Commerce Committee scuttled his confirmation, working with sleeves rolled up in office of Dexter Keezer, brains of NRA Consumers' Advisory Board. Thorp is doing temporary job for his close friend Keezer before taking big job with National Emergency Council—after congressional adjourns.

Willard hotel, fourth floor; Clarence Darrow and Charles Edward Russell, his adviser, two aged, inveterate Socialists—trotting to the elevator toward lunch. Darrow unkempt as usual; Russell dapper in straw hat, tropical suit, cane and sport shoes.
Don Rieberg, biggest NRA shot next to Johnson, sucking his head out office window by signal to Mrs. R. waiting in automobile across the street, that he's ready to go home. (Just at that point, I heard later, a sudden conference broke out and Mrs. R. had to wait an hour and a half.)
Jim Farley's house-warming for the press, beginning at his office in new postoffice building and continuing long at Hotel Raleigh's top floor ballroom; Jim, who doesn't drink, said the newspaper boys had been nice to him and he wanted to do something nice for them. . . . Hed cut his finger, "scraped it on a door." Couldn't get his mind off his work. Somebody had written a speech which he must deliver soon and he stepped out on the parapet in the middle of the party to see if he liked it.

Painting of Ben Franklin in Farley's office bears startling resemblance to Jim. So does Bill Slattery, P. O. Department comptroller, just as bald, but not as tall or white-haired.
All Democracy's patronage lieutenants are there, including his Emil Hurja. You may have thought they were tough, unprincipled spoilsmen, but they talk like pure-hearted evangelists of the New Deal. . . . Also Bob Jackson, J. Bruce Kremer and Arthur Mullen—the "big three" lobbyists who quit the national committee because P. D. said they must do that or quit lobbying. High P. O. official confides each is as politically potent in home state—New Hampshire, Montana, Nebraska respectively—as ever.
Washington hotel coffee shoppes for dinner. Vice President and Mrs. Jack Garner. Jack called out to a newspaper man: "Hey —, you're looking pale. Trouble with you is you don't drink the right brand of whisky."
Willard hotel again, hours later: Absinthe trappe in Stag room with Sidney Hillman of Amalgamated Clothing Workers and NRA. Objective conversation about everybody, but big embarrassment because I invited Sidney in and find I've left my pocketbook somewhere, so he pays the bill. (Copyright, 1934, NEA Service, Inc.)

TALENTED GERMAN YOUTH HEADS CAST IN PASSION PLAY
Henry Orlmann, tall blonde German youth of twenty-nine, portrays the role of the Christ in the original Passion Play which will be presented in Jacksonville on Friday, June 15, at the Fox-Blinos theatre, with other leading roles taken by an original cast from among the Freiburg players.

Henry Orlmann as "The Christ"

This great stage attraction is playing in the leading theatres in the country with great success. It is now the first time in 800 years that the original Freiburg Passion Play is being executed in the English language.
Orlmann takes the role of the Christ as serious in his real life as he does on the stage, and lives a religious, studious life, finding the greatest interest in studying the life of Christ as a true example of right living. He avoids arguments and has no interest in amusements, although he likes swimming and tennis, but indulges in them solely or the exercise possible. He is built correctly for the feature role, being six feet, one inch in height and slim, but his characterization is acclaimed one of the finest bits of artistry ever exhibited.

WILL ROGERS SAYS:
To the Editor of The Journal-Courier:
Hollywood, Calif., June 12.—When the National Recovery Act (NRA) was drawn up there was one clause in there in regard to "collective bargaining," and it was known at the time, that the thing could mean just about anything that anybody wanted it to. Now they never will get through with all these strikes, till they send that clause to a supreme court that has a Webster dictionary, and let them hold a final clinic, and announce just what the thing means, in case it does mean anything. It's always better to brand a calf plain the first time, you just can't brand him so he will belong to both outfits.
Yours WILL ROGERS.

Announcement

CITY SHOEMAN IN ST. LOUIS AT SEAT OF LEARNING

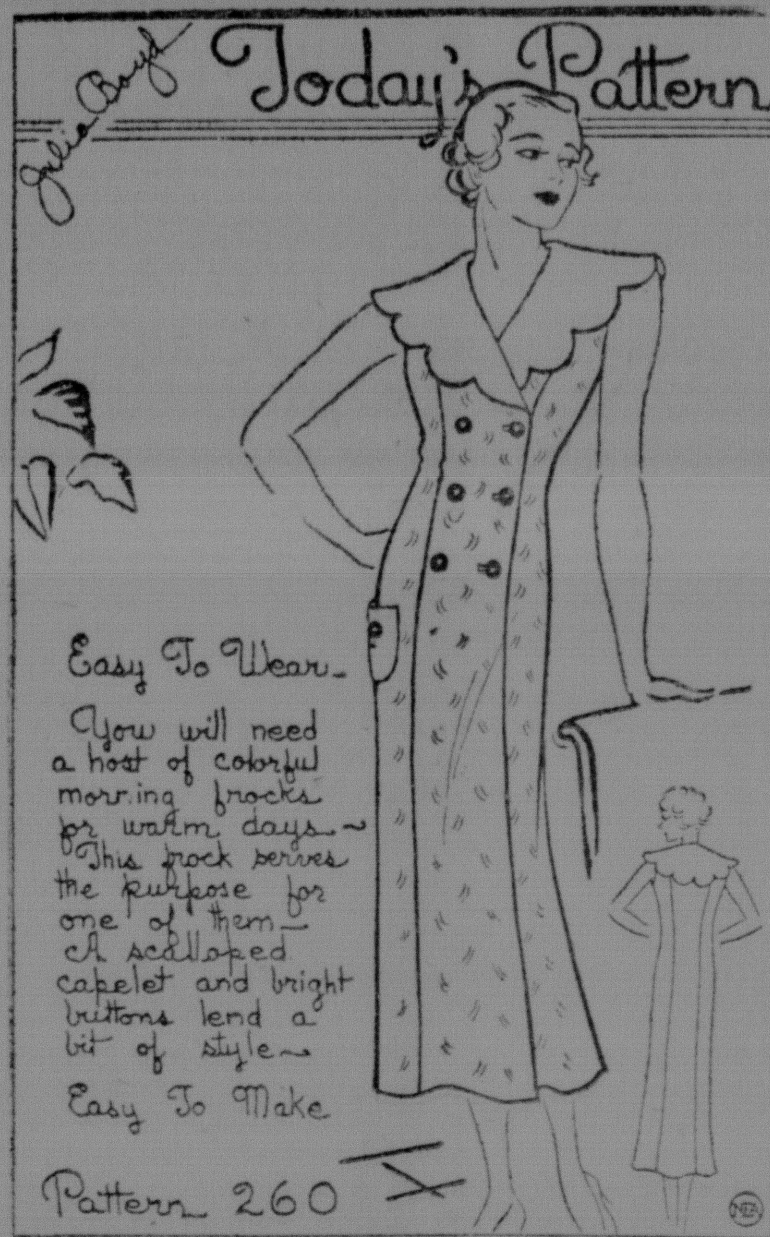

TO TRAIN AS FOOT COMFORT EXPERT

Mr. Willard Hines' experience in shoe fitting at the McCoy Shoe Store has impressed him with the need for special study of foot comfort problems. In line with his ambition, Mr. Hines is now in St. Louis attending the Scholl Orthopedic Training School conducted by Dr. Wm. Scholl, who is recognized as the foremost authority on foot care.

This means that on Mr. Hines' return the McCoy Shoe Store will provide, in greater measure, an important service for the benefit of its customers—that of furnishing means of relief and correct fitting of shoes to combat every kind of foot ailment. This is a progressive step because only an experienced man in the shoe business realizes the full significance of foot troubles and the true importance of relief measures.

It will be the business of the foot comfort department, operated under Mr. Hines' direction, not only to relieve foot troubles, but to prevent them, especially by scientific guidance in the selection of correct footwear.

The Scholl Orthopedic Training School covers every phase of foot comfort study, an important branch of which is Scientific Shoe Fitting, and when Mr. Hines returns his new qualifications are certain to make him many new friends.

PETER ALOSI, 45, ADMITS SLAYING OF FIVE PERSONS

Tells Officers He Had Only Intended to Kill One, Joe Fazio

Susansville, Calif., June 12.—(P)—Quoted by officers as declaring he does not care what the authorities do to him, and that his actions resulted from the breaking up of his home, Peter Alosi, 45, today confessed standing five people to death. It was announced tonight by Sheriff James Leavitt.

The sheriff said Alosi told him and other officers that he had not intended to slay five persons, but only Joe Fazio, whom he characterized as his bitter enemy and the person responsible for the estrangement between himself and his wife and children.

Fazio, a grocer, his wife, their grown son and daughter, and a woman neighbor were found killed and mutilated, near and in their homes here Sunday night.

Sheriff Leavitt said Alosi said: "I went to the home of Joe Fazio and killed him. I stabbed him and put him in the bath tub where I washed away the blood, and was cutting him up when Mrs. Fazio and John came to the house. 'I could not get away, so I killed them too.'"

Alosi was quoted as saying he killed the mother first, and then the son, leaving both in the house in a pool of blood. He said he then went to his own home, which was only a few houses away, and there burned the bloodstained clothes he had been wearing, the sheriff declared.

Next, he told officers, he went to the grocery store the Fazio's operated, with the intention of killing Sara Fazio, the daughter. On the way there, however, he met the girl in an automobile with Mrs. Lena Mianstani, her neighbor.

The women, he explained, stopped him and asked if he knew where the other members of the Fazio family were. Sara asking him if he knew whether her mother and father had been fighting again.

"I told them, 'yes,'" officers quoted Alosi. "Then I said they were taken to the hospital, and asked them to take me with them. I didn't want to kill Lena, only the girl, but I couldn't help it."

Their route, the man told the sheriff, led them past the mill pond near which the bodies of the girl and Mrs. Mianstani were found. As they reached the pond, he was quoted, he tried to stab Sara and the older woman put up a battle to stop him. He turned his knife on her and she fell from the car he told officers.

The Fazio girl then jumped out of the other door of the automobile and ran down the road with Alosi in pursuit. About 160 yards down the road, as authorities have reconstructed the crime, he overtook her, stabbed her to death, and dragged her body into the willows by the side of the road.

Alosi said he believed he had killed Mrs. Mianstani, but that when an automobile driven by Orin Haws stopped by the millpond, he returned to the scene and when Haws tried to lift the still-living woman into his car, without success, Alosi said he was crouching nearby.

said, "I came back and finished her."

He paused long enough to drag the body of Mrs. Mianstani into the weeds at the side of the road, where he covered it with grass and willows. His statement to the sheriff continued:

"I started back from my house and passed the sheriff but he no see me. He said he then threw away his socks, stepped into the mud with his shoes, and went home to bed."

New York, June 12.—(P)—Albert M. Austin, former executive vice president of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Co., testified in federal court today that Joseph W. Last week Harriman blamed Austin for the conditions which brought about the federal charges and today Austin placed the responsibility on his aged former employer.

GREENE FARMERS READY TO START WHEAT HARVEST

Fields To Yield Up To Thirty-Five Bushels an Acre is Report

Carrollton, Ill., June 12.—Farmers in this county are preparing to start the harvest of wheat this week in several places binders were being put in readiness to start cutting Monday and in a few cases the harvest really began. As a rule the wheat is heading while the straw is very short making cutting and binding difficult. It is estimated by most farmers that on good ground their crop will thresh out 20 bushels or more to the acre. Farm Adviser R. H. Glanahan states that on making a tour of investigation on wheat conditions that he has seen some fields in this vicinity that will probably yield as high as 35 or more bushels.

Other fields have been examined and look to be almost complete failures and are expected not to produce over five bushels per acre. Despite the severe drought the corn crop of this county as a rule has a much better prospect than that of last year according to the opinion of the farm adviser, planting was done over a month earlier this year than last and in most places the prospects for a corn crop are very good and with a few good rainfalls in the next few weeks should make a very good yield. The farm adviser is asking farmers to protect the corn crop from chinch bugs which are reported as being very numerous in places, he advises the plowing of furrows around each field where creosote may be run to combat the insects, which will leave the wheat fields as soon as the cutting is done. There will be a fair crop of early oats, but late oats are in a very bad shape according to Glanahan. Garden truck has been hurt very badly by the drought and early potatoes it is feared will be short in yield.

TIGERS NOSEOUT RED SOX 4 TO 2

Boston, June 12.—(AP)—Tom Bridges, ace Detroit right-hander, today hurled the league-leading Tigers to a 4-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the series opener. It was Bridges' eighth win of the season and his third successful start against the Yawkey-Collins entry.

"Dusty" Rhodes opened for the Sox and was effective until the sixth when the Tigers scored all their runs.

The Sox also scored all their tallies in the sixth, when Rhodes was yanked in favor of Finch-hitting Max Bishop.

It was the Tigers' 14th victory in 18 starts.

ELECT MODERATOR

Carlinville, Ill., June 12.—(AP)—The Rev. J. F. Vonck, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Elgin, is the new moderator of the Illinois synod of the church, having been elected to succeed the Rev. Horace Bachelor of Mattoon. The synod will end its three day annual meeting here tomorrow.

GIANTS SWAMP REDLEGS 12-1

Cincinnati, June 12.—(AP)—The Giants staged another of their increasingly frequent hitting rampages today and slaughtered the Reds, 12 to 1, behind the tight hurling of Freddy Fitzsimmons in the opening game of their series. It was the fifth time in seven encounters the National League leaders have trimmed the Cincinnati Reds.

Big Fred had an easy time registering his sixth triumph of the year as the Giants started him off ahead by knocking Bennie Frey out in the first inning and scoring five runs.

Fitzsimmons granted only eight hits and connected safely his first four times at bat.

The only walk Fitzsimmons gave cost him a shutout. He passed Harlan Pood in the seventh and Adam Coker's long single and Gordon Slade's fly produced a run.

Frey was driven out before he had retired a man.

LEAVES TO PLAY IN GRAND HAVEN BAND

J. Whitcomb Riley left Monday for Keokuk, Ia., and from there he will leave with Dee Peterson and his 12-piece orchestra for Island Haven, Mich., to play a summer engagement. He was accompanied to Keokuk, Ia., by his mother, Mrs. T. J. Riley, sister, Grace, and Bernadine Bush.

F. A. Taggart of Merced was a business caller in Jacksonville yesterday.

Not to Be Taken Lightly

It's a quaint old Scotch custom, this heaving the caber. The athlete grabs a log, balances it precariously in the palms of his hands and pushes his body against it, nudging it into the air. Of course, the steel-muscle lad who heaves the lumber the farthest wins the prize. The above photo was taken during a professional meet in London.

The only walk Fitzsimmons gave cost him a shutout. He passed Harlan Pood in the seventh and Adam Coker's long single and Gordon Slade's fly produced a run.

Frey was driven out before he had retired a man.

Facts About Black Bass Told in Paper by Dr. M. L. Pontius

Some months ago Dr. M. L. Pontius, of this city was invited to address a meeting of fishermen held in Peoria. He prepared a paper on the black bass, a variety of fish in which he is much interested. On account of illness Dr. Pontius was unable to give the address in Peoria, but several of his friends read the paper he prepared and themselves became interested.

A portion of the paper, which contains much information on the black bass, one of the most fascinating varieties of game fish, is published below. The fishing season is now well under way, and fishermen of Jacksonville will find much to interest them in the information Dr. Pontius has gathered on this subject.

He says in part: "Every man or woman should have a hobby, something that is entirely different from his chosen vocation. Such a hobby is not only a diversion and recreation but it is a golden opportunity, a splendid preparation for better service in one's chosen work. Some men and women play golf; others do not care for golf but enjoy hunting or an automobile trip around the country. Many a person finds a hobby in collecting various articles of personal or general interest. My hobby is fishing.

"For many years I have been interested in the black bass which is found in such large numbers in our mid-west rivers and lakes. From various data presented by individuals and especially by the state and federal governments I have endeavored to procure information concerning these fishes. They belong to the family known as Centrarchidae. This family includes the small and large mouth basses, the crappie and the smaller forms generally known as sunfish and in some sections of the country as perches.

Distinguished Marks

"I am not so much interested in the small mouth black bass, altho this fish is found in the Central West and as far north as Manitoba and as far south as Mississippi. The general maximum weight of the small mouth bass is about five pounds. There are records of a small mouth bass weighing from six to eight pounds but the average is from one to two pounds. The small mouth bass may be distinguished by body marks. These are in the form of vertical black bars on the side. While the large mouth bass has more or less well defined longitudinal stripes along the middle of the side and no cross bars. The small mouth bass has seventeen rows of scales on the cheek. The large mouth bass has but ten. The mouth of the large mouth bass extends back of the eye and that of a small mouth bass is even with the anterior margin of the eye.

"The large mouth bass (micropterus salmoides) is known in various localities as straw bass, green bass, fresh water trout, Oswego bass, and last winter when I was in New Orleans they called the black bass we caught green trout. The weight of the large mouth bass varies according to the climate and temperature of the water and food supply. In the warmer lakes of the south a black bass will grow from twelve to fifteen pounds. In the Central West the large mouth bass seldom exceeds the weight of six pounds and the average is probably near two pounds. Government reports indicate that in Florida black bass have been caught weighing from seventeen to twenty pounds. In Florida this fish is called a trout.

How Old Are Fish?

"There are several ways of determining the age of fishes. First, the older and more common method is statistical and is based on measurements of length. This method is not very reliable because climate, temperature of the water, food, etc., have much to do with the growth of a fish. Second, a simpler and more popular method of determining the age of fishes is based on the rings formed on the scales. With a pocket lens these rings may be seen on the scale of the fish. When these rings are widely separated the fish was at that time growing rapidly and when close together the fish was growing slowly at the time when these rings were formed. Now if the total length of the fish is divided in the same proportion as the scale is divided by the rings from its center to the margin, the resultant length will be the lengths in order of the fish at the completion of each year of its life. However, one should exercise care in procuring a scale that has been on the fish during its entire life. Scales that are pulled from a fish will be rapidly reproduced. Rings may also be found on the earstone of the fish which may indicate the age, but this method is much more difficult than the examination and measurement of rings on a fish scale.

Habits of Bass

"During the spawning season nests are made in shallow water, rarely exceeding two feet. Fine gravel is brushed into a circular mass by the fish. After depositing the eggs the female generally leaves the vicinity. When the eggs are deposited they become attached to the bottom and are thenceforth continually guarded by the male. During a period of from one to three weeks, varying according to the climate and temperature of the water, the hatching period continues, and the male bass by a gentle motion of the fins keeps the water over the eggs agitated. These guardians are not tempted during this period by any kind of bait. Occasionally one is caught from the nest because he is hooked while attempting to drive the bait away from the nest. When the young emerge they remain in the nest for several days. Then they arise in a school where they remain for several days before scattering. The male guards them during this period. Small fishes feed on crustacea insects, etc. As they grow older they become canities and eat practically all kinds of fish, frogs, tadpoles, worms, insects and much vegetable matter.

"The length of a large mouth bass is determined by environment. The government indicates that no special study has been made to determine the longevity of these fish although they have reason to believe that some of them are at least ten years old. A large mouth bass one year old, according to government reports, will measure six to eight inches and weigh from three to four and one quarter ounces, depending very largely upon the temperature of the water and the supply of food. A two year old large mouth bass will measure from nine to eleven inches and weigh from six to twelve ounces. A three year old large mouth bass will weigh from fourteen ounces to one pound five ounces. In southern waters a bass might attain a length of nine inches at the age of one year. In the Central West it is quite probable that a three pound bass is about four or five years old. Growth is largely determined by food supply, temperature and extent of range. Bass in small lakes or ponds do not get along so well or grow so fast as those in a river or a large lake.

"If our lakes and rivers were protected from sewage and if our present game laws were rigidly enforced, within a few years, each person who desired could enjoy bass fishing such as he has never dreamed about in his previous experience. It is to be regretted that we do not have in Morgan County an organization composed of all men and women who love this sport and who are interested in having the game laws rigidly enforced and faithfully observed."

Open Wheat Harvest Near Jerseyville

Jerseyville, June 12.—The hum of the harvesters was heard in the wheat fields of Jersey county Monday afternoon when the first sheaves of the 1934 crop were cut.

Nearly two weeks ahead of the former dates for harvest the reaping established a record for the commencement of wheat cutting in Jersey county.

The starting of the harvest was quite general in the lighter soil areas of the county. Only on the heavy black land districts was the crop a trifle too green for the reaper.

The heads are of fair size but as a rule have not filled and in many instances there is a shriveling of the grain as a result of the drought and recent heat waves. Some of the straw has failed to develop any heads.

There is a wide variety of quality in the fields. Some farmers report that they have a very good show for a wheat crop but a majority present rather pessimistic views regarding the outcome.

Oats in the county is quite generally too short to harvest with a binder. The plant headed out from eight to ten inches in height and has filled lightly because of the adverse weather conditions.

Many Jersey county farmers are either pasturing their oats fields or have plowed them under and will plant them in soy beans or other crops.

Corn planting was completed in the county the past week. Bottom land fields were planted earlier this season than ever before as a result of the prevailing dry weather conditions.

To Normal School

Miss Adelia Scribner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Scribner of Jerseyville, left Sunday afternoon for Charleston where she will attend summer school for the next six weeks. Miss Scribner has been reemployed to teach Union School for her fifth consecutive year.

Miss Scribner graduated from the eighth grade at Union before entering the Jersey Township High school. The same was true of her father Truman Scribner, who graduated from the Union in 1890. Three of her brothers, Joseph, Wilson and Powell and her sister Estelene graduated from the school.

Lake Mauvaisterre Has Ten-Inch Rise

Jacksonville and vicinity received another fine rain early Monday evening, further relieving drought conditions. The downpour descended out of a cloud from the north and continued for more than half an hour. Nearly an inch of rain was reported over an area of several miles.

Lake Mauvaisterre benefited considerably from the rain. City employees at the pumping plant reported Tuesday morning the lake rose ten inches. While the city's water supply had been estimated as adequate for several months, this additional rise will do much toward helping the situation.

Crop conditions are reported to look much better as a result of showers during the past ten days. There are parts of the county, however, that still are badly in need of rain.

President's Report Is Read By Dr. Jaquith At Illinois Commencement

The annual report of President H. C. Jaquith of Illinois College, read during commencement exercises Monday, follows:

The President's Report is more than the record of the college year officially submitted to the Board of Trustees at the annual meeting. It is another chapter in the long notable history of Illinois College; in fact, it is the first chapter that I have been privileged to write as its seventh president.

I have read the preceding chapters with unbounded interest. The lives and efforts of many of those here today have been written into the dramatic story of this institution. Each class reunion turns back to those years on which are enshrined the events in which they especially participated. Not all these events are a matter of record; for some are hidden in the memory of the alumni only to be revealed on reunion days and to the circle of intimate friends. The memory of one who wrote many of these chapters hovers over this college. He built himself into its life and into its structure. Dr. Charles Henry Rammekamp was an inseparable part of the stirring story, he, himself, wrote of the College. The chapter last year was written by Acting-President John Griffith Ames. His courage and fine leadership were important factors in guiding the College during an unusually difficult period.

The accomplishments of this past year have been possible because they were merely additions built upon the thoughtfully designed and well-constructed work of the past.

Every educational institution has a direct responsibility to the larger whole, the country and the state. The measure of its effectiveness is a matter of vital concern to the public. Every college should render an account of its educational stewardship if it expects to continue to merit confidence and good will. In the early days of American history education was the handmaid of religion. Such pioneering college as Illinois owe their beginnings to the fervor and faithfulness of religious leaders, who earnestly believed in the ideas of democracy. During the intervening years changes have taken place that have found reflection in educational institutions. We now have the state supported University, with its mass of undergraduate departments; the state supported normal schools often seeking to become miniature universities; the city or state supported junior college; the privately supported junior college; and the more recently developed junior college run for private profit and the liberal arts college. These last were the first and have continued to hold the torch of learning high and to blaze a definite trail that forever leads onward into the unexplored fields of education.

The economic pressure has stimulated greatly the junior college idea, extended its development. Students can often live at home and attend a junior college in their community that would otherwise be unable to obtain further education. The difficulty of obtaining employment for high school seniors has led many communities to add a graduate year to the high school course. The normal schools defined in their charter as institutions for the training of teachers for the public schools, have sought additional state appropriations and expanded their curriculum in imitation of the State University undergraduate courses.

There is a traditional liberty of action in the field of education. Institutional freedom and instruction freedom have undoubtedly aided in the development of new theories and practices in the field of learning. But the time is rapidly approaching when there must be a clearer definition of the functions and the place of the various institutions in the educational plan considered as a whole. The tax payer is already raising questions about the mounting costs of state supported institutions. Why does the normal school continue to admit any student and offer a four-year course at the full expense to the state when the State University asks each to share some expense by charging a nominal tuition?

On the other hand, the state must continue to recognize fully the large service the privately supported colleges and universities are rendering sons and daughters of citizens of this state, serving over forty thousand students in Illinois. The state does not wish nor is it financially able to assume the whole educational burden. It must not only appreciate the values of these privately supported institutions, but it must not place the state schools in unfair or unequal competition.

Curiously enough, now and then an apologist arises to defend the liberal arts college, forgetting that these are the oldest and most experienced educational institutions in America. They are not on the defensive, except where individual institutions have failed to keep abreast of the educational advances, then, like any institution whose only claim to existence is tradition, that particular college has no defense.

The liberal arts college, of sufficient enrollment and endowment to enable it to maintain a broad curriculum and adequate faculty, maintains today a distinctive place in the educational world. It is the inheritor of the finest traditions in American education. It has a flexibility in administration that enables it quickly to inaugurate or adopt methods and content of educational material fitted to this day and age. It attracts to the teaching staff those scholars who seek the professional chair because they love to teach and have that intimate contact with the students that a smaller college offers.

In a day and age when it is increasingly difficult to guide a high school student into any particular field of future endeavor with assurance he will find an immediate opening at the end of the training period, there is far greater reason for that student to follow a general course of study that definitely aims at the broadening of this outlook on life, at acquisition of an art of mastering subject material and its application to testing problems. For if one thing can be said with certainty in the midst of economic uncertainty, it is this, that greater competition requires finer training and a more winsome and finer developed personality.

A college such as Illinois offers to any student who seeks to learn, full preparation for any of the professions or graduate studies with all credits acceptable at their full value. It prepares teachers, and its teaching alumni reflect great credit on their Alma Mater. It unfolds a multitude of opportunities in a great variety of fields of endeavor.

The student is in intimate contact with the faculty, the experienced members of which insist on teaching freshman classes, bringing to the student the first year the wealth of their experience and knowledge.

The development of the personality of the individual student is more certainly attained in the smaller institution where the individual is the important factor in the common whole. With practically the same number of extracurricular activities, with a full program of athletics, and with societies, the smaller number of students has a much larger number of opportunities for self expression than in a larger organization. The individual is not lost in the mass but emerges as a distinctive personality whose growth has been aided by his daily personal contact with his classmates and understanding faculty.

These are some of the things to which we point with pride and assurance. Education must change in a changing world. In fact, it must be the guide to the future as well as guardian of the past. Our belief in the values of a college such as Illinois, that insures adequate training for life tomorrow, are reaffirmed and enthusiastically practiced.

The second part of the President's Report is a record of the year's activities submitted to the Board of Trustees, the governing body of the College. Dr. Baxter, as chairman, speaks for the Board on several important matters of common interest. A series of reports rendered to members of the Board regularly during the year have given detailed information. A few of those items are included in this annual report because of their more general interest and significance.

The freshman class this year was one of the largest in the history of the College, with an enrollment of 162; 116 men and 46 women. The total enrollment for all classes was 433.

The following new members were added to the faculty last fall: Dr. Harold Fuller, department of Physics; Mr. Phillip Boyd in the department of History and Political Science; Mrs. Josephine McNamara in Art and Art Appreciation; Mrs. Anna Lee Linville in Dietetics; and it was an especial pleasure to have Mrs. Ruth Martin Brown return to the department of Classics, and Dr. R. O. Stoops, formerly principal of Whipple Academy and now Superintendent of Schools of Jacksonville, as special lecturer in the department of Education. These additions to the personnel have insured the continuation of the highest scholastic standards. We have greatly missed Professor John Griffith Ames, who has been on leave of absence, but delighted to have him return and share in the events of Commencement Week.

The faculty has reviewed and revised the curriculum in keeping with the accepted changes in educational methods and material content. A careful study was made of the curriculum and the best advice secured from numerous educational leaders. The catalog has been rewritten with the uninformed but inquiring prospective student definitely in mind. New information has been added to aid the student and parent and serve as a guide in the choice of a vocation and the necessary preparation.

The faculty have worked with patience and loyalty. No administrator could ask or expect a finer spirit of cooperation. Whatever measure of success marks the results of this school year are equally shared and credited to the devotion and cooperation of the faculty.

Certain changes have been made on the campus. The women, who have previously resided at Academy Hall, are now living in two large houses known as Lippincott and Fayerweather adjacent to the campus. A third house will be needed next year to accommodate the increasing attendance. Smith House in reality becomes the center of the women's activities. Baxter Hall serves as a common dining room for men and women.

Several lesser changes have taken place on the campus that have facilitated the operation of the College plant, increased the facilities of the Physics Department and improved the men's dormitory. Extensive changes were made in landscaping and beautifying the campus under the direction of Mrs. Courtney Wright.

In keeping with the policy of aiding as many worthy students as possible to secure an education, the administration has arranged that most of the work on the campus, in the buildings, in the office, and dining hall be assigned to students. The student is given the opportunity, because of merit, but retains the position only so long as the work is entirely satisfactory. The relationship between student and the administration is on a strictly business arrangement, each student being paid by check for the exact amount of time employed.

As in the past years, the community of Jacksonville has cooperated fully and has employed scores of students in varying capacities and enabled them to earn part of their college expenses. This traditional friendly relationship between the College and the community is of inestimable value to the working student.

In addition to this aid the government, through its Student Work Relief appropriation granted to college and universities, a student work subsidy, which enabled the College to employ a tenth of its full time enrolled students who otherwise would find it impossible to continue their college course. Those workers were not to replace any full or part time employee. The students thus chosen earned on the average of fifteen dollars a month for the second semester expenses.

It is interesting to note from the records of our student employment office that 214 of the students, or nearly half, earned part of their expenses during the school year. This does not include those that worked during the summer vacation.

The library is the vitalizing center of the College, and Illinois College takes just pride not only in its exceptional library facilities and building but in the adequacy of its material in books, pamphlets and periodicals for the scholarly work within each department. The full report of the librarian is worthy of detailed study as evidence of use of the facilities by the students. Eight hundred thirty-seven new books were added to the library, 36,760 books were in circulation during the year. The browsing room, which is a distinctive feature, received a special gift of $100 from Mr. Frederick Tanner for new books. Other gifts were received from Professor W. D. MacClintock, Dr. Ruth Farnback, Dr. Edward Capps, Dr. Joseph Capps, Mrs. Helen Epler, Eugene D. Holmes, Dr. C. E. Black, Illinois State Historical Society, Illinois State Department, and the Carnegie Corporation.

During the last week a most notable collection of old and rare books were received from Dr. Egerton Crispin of Los Angeles of the class of 1902. These books are worthy of a separate report. They have been placed on exhibition in the library building during Commencement Week and have been greatly admired by all lovers of books. They date from the fifteenth and sixteenth century, are of inestimable value and are rare examples of the early art of printing. The College is deeply indebted to the donor for making the library the depository for these choice books.

During the year the College has been the recipient of a most generous bequest from the estate of Myron Gold, of Waverly, to be added to the endowment fund. Gifts last year amounting to over $6,000 to the operating account from trustees, alumni and friends, enabled the College to maintain its record of a yearly balanced budget.

It has been my privilege during the year to meet with the larger fellowship of Illinois College alumni. Enthusiastic gatherings were held in Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Cleveland, New York, Boston and Springfield. A new association was formed in Peoria, and Dr. Baxter met with the west coast alumni in Los Angeles. The alumni association has been most ably directed by Mrs. Rammekamp, who has conserved the intimate contacts of past years and added a multitude of new friendships during the last year.

I cannot refrain from adding an especially encouraging word to the friends of the College and the community of Jacksonville. Last year imposed a very severe test on the stability of many institutions and the courage of innumerable individuals. The stuff of which this community was really made was tried in the fires of adversity, disappointment and financial loss. It challenged and continues to challenge the loyalty of every trustee, alumnus and friend of the College to renewed devotion. I want to publicly acknowledge this loyalty to the College. Nothing could better demonstrate the assured place the College occupies in the state and in this particular community. I can assure you that Illinois College has never had a finer more satisfactory year's work to report than this one which is just closing. Disaster was mastered, new heights were attained.

This Commencement program began with the annual initiation, dinner and open meeting of Phi Beta Kappa. It is fitting that the emphasis on the high scholastic standing of Illinois College, as exemplified by this chapter of the national honor society, should introduce the events of the week. The program which was short in time but not in events, in order to accommodate more of the alumni and to permit more of the undergraduates to remain, is rapidly drawing to a close. It is my first full Commencement. This class I have known intimately during their senior year. I have an admiration for their scholastic ability and for their athletic progress, but more than this, I have a very deep sense of appreciation for the way in which they have cooperated at all times in helping to mold the spirit and enthusiasm of the campus. Changes have been made with their help. Old ideals have been maintained with the proper valuation of their abiding worth.

Seniors, as you join the alumni of Illinois College today, I shall remember you more intimately than any of the other classes of graduates, because we have worked together for a common purpose. You have loyally supported the administration and the faculty. You can count on that reciprocity from each one of us.

At this time it is customary to pause for a brief moment in memory to those alumni and former students who have died during the past year and word of whose death has reached the College:

STATEMENT OF CHAIRMAN

Statement by Dr. Baxter, the Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Illinois College Commencement, June 11, 1934.

One year ago I came before you to report upon the financial condition of the college and in particular to state some of the facts in connection with the unauthorized hypothecation of certain bonds belonging to Illinois College. Today I come before you again to give a brief statement of the stewardship of the Board of Trustees.

Whereas a year ago we had scarcely recovered from the immediate effects of the loss; this year, I am glad to report, that the College not only recovered from the shock but is firmly and soundly established. The College is operating within its income; it has strengthened some weak spots in its financial structures; increased its student enrollment; maintained its high standards of education; aroused its Board of Trustees to a greater degree of activity; has had the cooperation of a loyal faculty and the stimulation of a leader in its new President, Dr. Harold C. Jaquith.

There is no feeling of depression or pessimism in the Board; no question of doubt as to the solidity and permanence of the College; no expression of "the poor old College" is voiced or even thought of. All persons in the business and educational departments are on their toes in their enthusiasm not to merely maintain, but to make Illinois College lead the way up and on to greater heights and influence in the cause of education. The technique of accomplishing this idea is the responsibility of our President and his faculty. It is the duty of the Board of Trustees to furnish and maintain the equipment. The Board has unstintingly set itself to this task. At its meeting yesterday, the Board made definite plans for the future of the College by the appointment of the "Illinois College Plan Commission." This commission is empowered to make an intensive study of what the future of the College should be, the methods and means necessary to achieve that ideal and to chart the course of progress for Illinois College for the next two or three decades. The College can not stand still and live—it must grow. The question is where to and how. The Board of Trustees is attempting to answer these questions through this Plan Commission.

The Board at its semi-annual meeting established "The Charles Henry Rammekamp Memorial Educational Foundation." The purpose is to perpetuate the name and services of Dr. Rammekamp to Illinois College during the five years as teacher and twenty-five years as President. The fund shall be held in Trust and controlled by the Board of Trustees. The first object will be the establishment of a Chair of History.

The first contribution of $1,000.00 to this foundation, was made by a loyal alumnus, Dr. Ekerton Crispin, of Los Angeles, California, more than a year ago. The donor designated that it was to become part of any memorial which the Board should see fit to establish.

It is with pleasure and genuine pride to be able to announce that the College will close its fiscal year June 30 without a deficit. The record of more than 25 years without a deficit is a challenge to educational institutions large or small. The balanced budget will be made possible this year by many and generous contributions by Trustees, alumni and friends. The budget of last year was set up with a full accounting of the Williams scholarship fund. A short time after the opening of the College last fall, we were notified by the Trustees of that fund that on account of a heavy loss in income, the portion due Illinois College would have to be cut about 35%, which amounted to $1,500. That amount had already been assigned in scholarships and there was no way of recouping that expenditure other than dismissal of students who were benefiting. This, the President and the Board, would not do. It is fitting to say that in spite of the heavy loss of income because of the unauthorized hypothecation of bonds and delays in payment of interest on some of the farm mortgage investments, the College has operated within its income. In other words, if the Trustees of the Williams scholarship fund had been able to pay the full regular amount, there would have been no occasion to call upon friends for financial aid to balance the budget. The balancing of the books with Illinois College has become a habit.

One year ago the College was faced with the special loss of $925,000.00 as a result of the unauthorized hypothecation of the bonds belonging to the Endowment. We are reasonably certain of recovering at least $120,000 net, and through bequests and donations the College has added $11,000.00 of new endowment so that the actual reduction in the endowment fund is a book value of about $125,000.00 instead of $500,000.00, as originally reported by the public press.

It is the hope of the Board that in the not too distant future the 10% cut in faculty and administration salaries may be rescinded and the full salaries be again in operation. All College bills have been promptly paid, advantage taken of cash discounts when offered. All faculty and administration salaries and wages have been promptly and regularly paid.

We enter the College year with a genuine optimism not only for the immediate year ahead but for the ultimate place of Illinois College in the general scheme of education.

To members of the Graduating Class, The Board of Trustees is proud to have voted degrees to each of you as a reward for successfully meeting the requirements of the College curriculum. As an alumnus of the College, I welcome you into the large group of loyal alumni. You are now acquainted with the ideals and history of your Alma Mater, and you have an individual and collective responsibility to maintain the tradition and carry on the ideals of Illinois College. The Board of Trustees has one constant objective: to provide the means for Illinois College to maintain the highest scholarship and culture, to furnish leadership in developing citizens and to educate men and women to be leaders. It is their sincere desire that students graduating from this College will not be merely graduated from "just another college" but men and women who have learned the fundamentals necessary to make them outstanding citizens and leaders, not followers in this complicated American life of ours.

Don't expect suddenly to change the social and economic life of America. Remember truly great men have preceded you in guiding the destinies of America. Don't presume, as some have, that our forefathers had no knowledge of social justice, made no effort to correct evils, failed to recognize the equality of opportunity for mankind. Don't be thoughtlessly misled by the many high sounding phrases and "holier than thou" attitude of some of the self appointed prophets in the wilderness of economic distress. History abounds with examples of quick Docters with trick penances and nostrums for human ills. Young men and women, keep your feet on the ground and your heads up. Ponder well the deeds and acts of our forefathers. Be in the foreground of those who will lead and mould public opinion. When your energy and enthusiasm hurl you forward at a dangerous speed, remember to apply the brakes of common sense as exhibited in the lives of those men and women who build wisely and sanely the foundations of our public. We believe in you, we have faith that you will reflect honor upon your College.

ONE MAN DRUM AND BUGLE CORPS TO BE IN PARADE HERE

Three Additional Entries For Legion Convention Are Received Here

Entries for the parade which will be a feature of the third division American Legion convention here next Sunday continue to be made according to Homer G. Bradney, convention secretary. Yesterday entries were received from the Granite City drum and bugle corps and the Collinsville clown band.

Another entry yesterday was a one man drum and bugle corps. This corps is composed solely of Jerry A. Havelka, Fox Lake, Ill., who plays two drums and a bugle at the same time.

Havelka is widely known for his ability as a corps and draws much attention wherever he appears. A number of local Legionnaires have seen this veteran perform and state that he is a real attraction.

The local committee feels that their convention here Saturday and Sunday will be rivaled only by an Illinois state convocation. With some 40 units entered in the parade the Jacksonville veterans expect to present one of the largest and most colorful ever held here.

The details of the parade will be announced in an early issue of this paper. However, bladders will be erected at the Jacksonville State hospital for spectators. These seats will be placed along South Main street south of Morton avenue where the parade will pass.

TRIO ARRESTED HERE ARE TAKEN TO CARLINVILLE

Three Men Face Charge of Robbing Standard City
Restaurant

Three men arrested by local police shortly after a restaurant at Standard City, near Carlinville, had been robbed, were turned over to Macoupin county authorities last night and taken to Carlinville.

The men who gave their names as Morris Seidel, Buster Dinora and J. E. Maufet, all of Springfield, appeared surprised when they were taken into custody by the local police. They strongly denied having participated in any robbery.

The local officers received a call from the Carlinville sheriff shortly before noon stating that an attempt had been made to rob the restaurant at Standard City. They claimed that the men escaped in a Chevrolet coupe bearing license No. 1-073,221, issued to a resident in Hillsdale, Ill.

Patrolman Charles Smith and Ernest Strawn went to the Dick Woods lane near Lake Mauvalster, Smith taking his station about two hundred feet south of Strawn. It had been agreed between the officers that if a car appeared bearing the license number they were seeking appeared a signal was to be given.

Within a short time a Chrysler coupe came from the south. Smith quickly caught the license number and signaled Strawn, who stepped into the road with a machine gun and ordered the men to stop. They immediately obeyed the command. Strawn ordered the men to step out of the car with their hands upraised. Smith then searched the car and claims that he found a pistol in the seat.

The men were brought to the police station and the Carlinville sheriff notified. Alvin Henry, chief deputy, and an assistant came to Jacksonville late yesterday afternoon and took the men back to Carlinville.

It is said that the men who attempted to rob the restaurant did not use any firearms, merely showing a policeman's star. No star was found on the three men arrested here.

Board of Education Adopts Budget; Two Text Books Removed

Two text books, in use in the Jacksonville school system 13 years were removed from the lists at the meeting of the board of education held last night, one of them permanently, and the other at least temporarily. The board also voted to employ Miss Edna Belle Clark, of Macomb to fill a vacancy at the Lafayette school, adopted the budget for the coming year, adopted the school calendar for the coming year, and decided not to hold a regular meeting during the month of July.

The budget, showing a reduction of $6,091.94 over actual expenditures for the past year, called for $179,448.50 to be collected by taxation for the operation and maintenance of the schools for the coming year. The budget for the past year was set at $180,274.79, but because of the closing of the Ayers National bank, necessitating increases in the debt service, attorney, and audit items of the budget, the board went over the estimate $5,565.65, according to a final report of the year's business submitted to the meeting last night.

A total of $135,256 is anticipated to be the needs for the educational fund for the coming year, and $44,192.50 for the building fund. The building fund is entirely for paying off outstanding obligations, including part of the $80,000 bond issue which was authorized during the past fiscal year by the state legislature in order to pay off obligations incurred before the closing of the Ayers National bank.

The old speller, which has been in use for the past 13 years, was voted off the list of books, and a new speller was put in its place. The new speller is the result of ten years of research work. Dr. R. C. Stoops, superintendent of schools reported, and is available in a graded form. The graded books cost about 15c each, while the combined form which includes sufficient work for students from the second through the eighth grade in another volume, is available for approximately 48c and 52c for out-right purchases, or 29c and 31c when accompanied by one of the spellers now in use.

New Teaching Method

No longer does the speller present a list of words to be memorized. The new method of teaching spelling is to have the students use the words in sentences as the words are introduced into the student's vocabulary. The new spellers also will have three word lists, one list which all students will be expected to know, another list which some of the students will learn, and still another list for students who absorb words more rapidly than others. A total of more than 4,000 words are included in the three lists.

The other book which has been in use for 13 years and which will be replaced this fall is the commercial geography. The new book will be entitled "Nations at Work" and will be put on trial for a year. Teachers of this subject have reported that the text used prior to this time used words with which the normal high school freshman is not acquainted.

The change in the method of teaching spelling has been reflected in the method of teaching shorthand. It was pointed out, and the board authorized the substitution of a book entitled "Direct-Method Materials for Gregg Shorthand" for use in both first and second year classes, and the addition of the "Great Speed Builder" for use of second year students. Heretofore no second year text has been used. The two volumes will be tried out for a period of a year and if found entirely satisfactory, will be placed on the regular list of books.

"Journalism for High Schools" also will be put on trial for a year before being recommended as the regular text book for the journalism class. The new book was written by instructors in journalism in two large high schools and is regarded as one of the most authentic works of the kind in the field. Not many books have been written about the field of journalism.

Another new book was authorized for use in classes for chemistry students who do not intend to enter college. Otherwise the manuals and texts now in use in the chemistry department will be used again during the coming year.

School will open next fall on Sept. 10, the Monday following Labor Day, and the first unit will continue until Oct. 19. The second unit will begin Oct. 22 and last until Nov. 28, and a Thanksgiving vacation from Nov. 29 to Dec. 3 has been planned. School will continue from Dec. 3 until Dec. 21, when it will close for the Christmas holidays, reopening again Jan. 2 and continuing until Jan. 29th, when the first semester will close.

The fourth unit will begin Jan. 28, and continue unbroken to March 8, and the second unit will open March 11, and continue until April 18th Good Friday. April 19, has been set aside for a holiday. The final unit will begin April 22, and continue until May 21, when final reports will be handed out and commencement exercises will be held.

144 Graduates

Dr. Stoops, in his report to the board, pointed out that 144 students were graduated from the high school this year, and 136 were given diplomas from the eighth grade. There were 229 tuition pupils in the high school during the past year, he added, stating that next year promised to bring in enough students to crowd the high school, but not to the point of overcrowding.

The only adverse criticism the high school has had from the various examiners, Dr. Stoops continued, was the lack of proper library facilities, both in the size of the room allotted for this purpose, and the number of books available. In order to partially remedy this situation, Dr. Stoops said that he had suggested that the finance committee insert in the budget $500 for the purchase of books for the high school library, $300 for the David Prince library and $500 for the various grade school libraries. He stated that the school has been unable to spend any amount during recent years, because of the necessity of purchasing books for indigent students in the grades, and that the board has spent very little on the libraries of the junior and senior highs.

Miss Edna Belle Clark, who received her bachelor's degree from Western Teachers College at Macomb, and who has completed a large part of her work for a master's degree, was employed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Mary Kline, who was unable to accept a contract tendered her because of illness in her family. Miss Clark has had one year of teaching experience.

Five members of the board, C. R. Grunty, Sam Foley, L. T. Oxley, Fred Hopper and Ralph Hutchison, attended the meeting, which was presided over by President George B. Kendall. S. N. Clark appeared at the meeting but was summoned for official duties shortly after his arrival.

Suggests Rules Committee

Mr. Oxley suggested that the president appoint a rules committee to bring recommendations before the board so that the board would have a set policy.

Mr. Foley reported that the new census and reporting work was well underway and that the schedule was being followed. Mr. Grunty introduced the tax levy resolution, and resolutions for the payment of bond interest when due. He also presented the budget, major items of which are as follows, compared with the budget of last year:

CAMPAIGN FOR BOY SCOUTS FUNL TO OPEN TODAY

Workers To Start Solicitation of Funds in City This Morning

Beginning today Jacksonville citizens will be asked to contribute to the annual Boy Scout campaign, which will provide Mascoutah Area with funds to carry on another year of activity. The goal here has been set at $3,100, an amount sufficient to maintain the Scout program effectively for the next 12 months.

A large number of business men and women interested in boys' work have volunteered their services for the campaign. This corps of workers began making the rounds this morning with contributors' cards. The campaign is expected to be closed within a few days.

Last night at a meeting of the executive committee and workers several men who have been interested in Scouting for years predicted success for the campaign. Dr. A. R. Applebee, chairman of the Scout board; James Walker, finance chairman in charge of the campaign, and Thomas Doyle, who has headed several similar drives, were optimistic as they addressed the men and women who will carry on the solicitation.

"You don't have to sell Scouting anymore," Mr. Walker said. "Over a period of years the Boy Scout program has shown results and spoken for itself. Everyone is acquainted with the fine work of the organization. It is just a question of how much each Jacksonville citizen will give to keep Scouting in this community."

Mr. Coyle said Jacksonville has always supported the Boy Scout organization since it was introduced here, and is able to continue. Payrolls in this city have held up remarkably well, he said, and there is no reason why such a modest amount cannot be secured. A considerable amount already has been secured in voluntary pledges from men who have been ardent supporters of the Boy Scout movement for many years.

It was pointed out during the meeting of campaign officials that 22 Scout campaigns have been staged in Illinois this spring, with 21 of these securing more than the original goal. The one exception was in a southern Illinois town where coal mines have been closed for several years.

Other communities in Mascoutah Area will conduct campaigns at the same time solicitation in Jacksonville is in progress.
